BRITONS GAIN AND FORCES OF ITALY HOLD HUNS BACK

Battling Around Cambrai Proceeds Generally To the Satisfaction of Allies

ITALIANS HOLD

N EW YORK, November 25-(Associated Press)-In the Cambrai sector of the Western Front and on the Italian front there still raged last night battles which in intensity and sanguinary results rank with any that have been fought in any of the war theaters ments and, a large number of teleduring the course of the war.

Steady and satisfactory progress in the encircling movement around Cambrai continued throughout yesterday with the exception of one partial reverse which resulted in General Bung's forces takof one partial reverse which resulted in General Bung's forces takhe does not recognize the authority of public, ing a position stronger than that which they had previously occuthe Russian extremists in the control

WOODS WON AND LOST

While there was generally heavy fighting along the whole of the Cambrai front yesterday, the most severe fighting was in and about the Bourlon woods, three miles from Cambrai and less than a mile from Fontaine Notra Dame, where some of the most hercely fought engagements of the past few days have occurred Early in the day the British drove the Huns out of these woods and took full possession of them. This continued for a few hours only for the Teutons directed one of the strongest counters recently employed and drove the Tommies out from the cover. Retiring in good order, Byng's men later attacked and established themselves on high ground and in a position which seems to effectually command the wood.

RESISTANCE MORE EFFECTIVE

In yesterday's fighting the resistance of the von Hindenburg army was far stronger than in the previous days of the battle. They fought with desperation and showed a vigor and spirit that had previously been little in evidence. There was no abatement in the energy which the Britons displayed but the stiffer resistance tender to effectually slow down progress.

While full reports of the number of prisoners have not yet beer forwarded from the British front despatches received yesterday said that more than a hundred guns of larger caliber had been captured in addition to smaller field and machine guns.

CASUALTY LISTS LARGE

Losses on both sides have been very high in killed and wound ed but the slaughter of the Huns has been enormous.

On the Italian front the fighting continued on into last night The blinding flash of exploding shells lighted the heavens and the flash from thousands of rifles illumined various parts of the extended battle field. High above a brilliant half moon flooded a light which made possible this night activity. On both sides of the Brenta River the battle went on during the day and into the night with the results still indecisive.

ITALIAN RESISTANCE SUPERB

Between the Brenta and the Piave River the day's fighting was the heaviest. There the Italians are contesting stubbornly exery inch of the way. In this sector around Monte Penica the battle obbed and flowed throughout the day, the Huns rushing up the slopes only to be thrown back. The carnage has been enormous.

In their stubborn resistance against greatly superior forces an the holding of them in check the Italian soldiers are achieving that which looked impossible. The Austro-Hungarians had expected be fore this to be well on their way to Venice. The splendid defense of the Latins has won the profound admiration of the Allies and has increased the respect of the Huns for their prowess.

NEW COMMANDERS CHOSEN

General Sir Robert Plumer was yesterday named by the Britisl war office to command the British divisions that have been sent to the Italian front in support of the hardly pressed ally. At the same time announcement was made that Lieutenant-General Sir W. R Marshall had been selected to command the Mesopotamia armieto fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of General Maud.

War Board Takes Most Drastic Steps For Control of Railroads That Has Been Made In All Nation's History

FREIGHT MUST MOVE AND BE KEPT IN MOTION

Some of Greatest Transportation Corporations Are Included In Control Which Is Necessary For the War

WASHINGTON, November 25-(Associated Press) -The most important and drastic move which the United States has ever made in connection with control of the operations of railroads was made yesterday by the war board, with the two fold purpose of relieving the present congested traffic and insuring a continued operation of transportation lines, thus insuring supplies for the camps, the forces in read: "Show me the man who aid I France, the navy, the people at home and the Allies. It followed a conference which was held by government officials and railroad heads at which the agreement was reached that was preliminary to the action taken.

All railroad lines east of Chicago are to be operated as a single railroad system by the war board, in accordance with the decision reached yesterday and announced early last evening.
